

For all East Lothian primary teachers

Languages Show Live – 11-12 March 2016

Language Show Live is coming up to Scotland for the first time

Following the continued success of Europe's most longstanding language event, which has been held in London for the past 27 years, Language Show Live will be opening its doors to Glasgow this 11-12 March for two inspirational days packed with language classes, free educational seminars, talks and cultural performances in an incredible celebration of languages.

With the new challenging 1+2 approach for language learning and teaching in Scotland's schools there's never been a better time to focus on your professional development.

At the event you'll find the advice, ideas and resources you need to feel confident in teaching languages while making the learning process more fun and engaging for your students.

Keep up-to-date with changes in the industry at free CPD certified seminars, check out the latest technology in language teaching, find resources from 100 exhibitors, enjoy show-only discounts and network with industry colleagues over two inspirational days – all free to attend.

Language Show Live Scotland will take place at the SECC in Glasgow from 11-12 March 2016 and it's completely free to attend.

You can register for free tickets and find out more by following the link:

<http://www.languageshowlive.co.uk/scotland/>