

An Introduction to Creativity Across Learning

An Introduction to Creativity Across Learning (SEIC)

This course introduces probationer practitioners to a variety of tools, ideas and resources that support creativity across learning. Participants will consider the creativity skills as defined by Education Scotland and the relationship between these skills in learners and teachers. Scotland's Creative Learning Plan at a Glance gives an overview of this. The course invites practitioners to think about how to develop practical ideas in their own settings and will examine and discuss a number of different ways in which creativity can be developed across learning.

Participants will:

- gain a deeper understanding of creativity across learning
- examine the role of creativity skills in teachers and learners
- have a good understanding of the support available for developing creative learning
- gain confidence in planning and assessing creative learning.

This session is open to probationer practitioners from any sector. Participants do not need to have any specific interest in the arts to benefit from this course. It is designed to examine creativity skills rather than technical arts discipline skills and is very much about creativity across learning.

The session is being offered on three different dates/times. Please use the hyperlinks below to sign-up via Eventbrite:
