

School of Ambition – Graphic Design Training Report 2009

I found the training in 2008-2009 more rewarding than the previous year. The young students who took part were enthusiastic and full of ideas. I learned more in the first couple of sessions by listening to their questions and the answers given by the trainers than in a whole course the year before (maybe that says more about me as a learner). The trainers were very patient and clear in their instructions and students learned the importance of planning and thinking about what they were going to do first as well as how to make good use of the Adobe design programs. These young people now have the knowledge to pass on these skills set to pass on to other people. One of the products they produced were library logos, which I shall make use of in future on library publications, in print and online.

Pupils have been trained on a wide range of programmes in Graphic Design. Some examples of their work can be found in the Corporate Identity folder. Some pupils have identified themselves as potential trainers of peers on these particular programmes.

A Graphic Design team will be running training courses using their newly discovered talents, confidence and leadership skills in the near future.
The purchase of a Colour Copier has ensured the professional look of any Posters, Tickets and Leaflets designed.

Next Steps: The Corporate Identity team will be moving onto the next phase of our journey which is the standardising of notice boards and any information on display around the school.

The experience I got from doing the Graphic Design course really benefited me. It was helpful because I love doing things on computers and it meant I could expand on this. I would be pleased if I could teach this to others which would also help expand my knowledge on this.
