RECOMMENDED RESOURCES - 8

BOOK OF THE WEEK

Genevieve Cogman's fantasy series is like an extended love letter to crime and mystery novels, books and writing in general, libraries and librarians. The Invisible Library is the first in the series, and I keep reading it... Maybe because one day I really really hope I'll open my front door and walk into a massive secret inter-dimensional library where dragons and fae are real; where librarians are super spies and no-one dares to cross them; and where overdue books are non-existent. Fingers crossed!

ONLINE RESOURCE OF THE WEEK

www.bl.uk/learning/online-resources

The British Library has a nice array of fully accessible online resources, which include accompanying teacher resources related to the topic areas explored. Each topic area is related to an item which the British Library holds in its vast collections, and contains expert commentary as well as suggested pupil activities.

Subjects covered include:

English

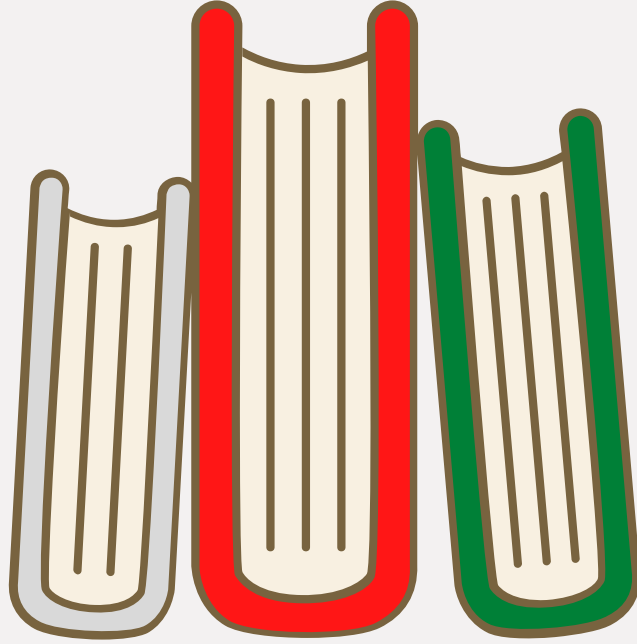

History

RMPS

Modern Studies

PSE

All the resources are free to access and share with pupils, plus there is a link to archived older resources, still accessible through UK Web Archive.

LIBRARY RESOURCE OF THE WEEK

<https://capitadiscovery.co.uk/eastlothian/home>

East Lothian Libraries Catalogue is your one stop shop for access to:

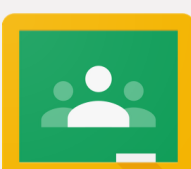

- SCRAN (week 3)
- The Great Courses (week 5)
- Universal Class (week 7)
- PressReader (week 2)
- BorrowBox (week 4)

Plus access to additional eResources which I have not covered in my recommendation sheets (as they are either aimed at leisure pursuits, driving tests or family history.)

The library catalogue also gives access to booklists (curated and your own), book reviews, FAQ and a search facility which looks at the stock of all public and school libraries across East Lothian.
