

Fed up catching colds?

We need your help

Do you have a child under 7 years of age?

©Gettyimages / Ingridthand

- The average child gets 12 colds a year and the symptoms can last two weeks or more. There is no cure!
- The Royal Hospital for Children and Young People is doing a study to see if using salt water nose drops help children with colds get better more quickly and less likely to pass on the cold to others.
- You can sign up at any time to take part during your child's next cold!
- To take part you can discuss with the study team by phone, video call or in-person to sign up.

If you'd like to find out more go to:
www.elviskids.co.uk
or contact the ELVIS Kids study nurse on 07973 657457.

Families completing the study will receive a £30 voucher and reasonable travel expenses to compensate for any inconvenience.

Alternative advert text v2 03_02.2021